“ Pain and suffering is to end this child's life. We shall not weep for this child, for she is now in a place of beauty where there is no war, no hate, and no death. Eternal life is to be brought forth through god by a soft glowing flame: containing a prayer that which all prayers are made, a life that which all lives are created. you can't see this flame, yet you always know it is there. you can't touch this flame, yet you can always know it is there. you can't touch this flame, yet you can always feel its presence. This child has now seen God, and God has a need for her. So, you see, this child did not die, she is reborn. To my loving cousin Toi and family. I love you and I am here for you as always.
