“ To the FAMILY,

I was just sitting here remembering that "wanna be' Eddie Murphy laugh n remembering how he'd sometimes look at u n make u wanna say "whattttt???".... how his eyes seemed to penetrate your mind like he knew something you didn't think he knew and/or didn't want him to know. He'd cup his hands under his chin with that mesmerizing look and then let you start the conversation.... don't ask him a question bcuz he'd answer it with a question...let you do all the talking ..he'd store your words, your body language and whatever emotions you displayed n2 that "computerized mental memory bank" of his 4 the next sequel ...lol...it would be in your best interest 2 switch 2 another topic the next time u saw him bcuz he didn't 4get what you had initially said... he had a knack 4 making u 2nd guess yourself....oh yeah, Popcorn was a sly dude...he was one of the rarest (ole skool kinda dude)...I'm a talker n so he'd just sit back with that swag of his and let me go on n on, and as far as I know he has neva been the type 2 "run n tell dat"

I'm smiling now as I visualize his smile...whenever I saw him, he had a SMILE on him that made you wanna SMILE...I know he's was cheezing when he heard God say "welcome home my son, welcome home my child and the Angels rejoiced as God plucked another Earthly flower 2 be planted in His Heavenly Garden.

Oh yeah!!! I just loved me sum Popcorn and I will miss him and i'll always regret that we never got 2 know each other 4 each other

May he R.I.P. Twanda

I met George "Popcorn " Davis a few years ago. I found him to be a very neat dresser who loved athletic shoes. He worn them with pride and style. He had a way of quickly sizing up a person. I learned that was a gift that was in his DNA. It was difficult to run a game on him. He had the situation all worked out while the game player was trying to run it. I found him to be unique, interesting, smart, and very wise. He fought a courageous battle. I pray that his spirit is at peace. I respected him and he showed me the same respect. May his life teach all of us to number our days. It was my pleasure to know him. KLJarmanSr.

To Mr. Joe: When a Father Loses His Son

I know there were no words you could say to let anyone know how you felt that day... I know it was hard for you to express the hurt you felt sitting in your room...feeling so weary and probably full of anger because the Angel came for your son to soon.

Mr. Joe, you will never know why your son had to go....reflect on the memories of those yesterdays and hold onto the joy of knowing you'll see him again one day.

May God continue to hold you in His loving arms and grant you peace.

“ When I think of Popcorn, I visualize his smile and how he always tried to fix my "trivial" love problems. It hurts so bad that I didn't go to see him b4 God called him home; I know I could've would've should've and the fact that I didn't eats at me daily. To his family, I am sorry 4 ur loss. May u all be comforted in the good memories he left behind. Love, Twanda

My mother always said "we won't die b4 our Time"..the Bible says "there's a Time 2 mourn, a Time 2 cry and an appointed time 2 die"... God called George by name..it was his Time..Time 2 leave this World and enter Heaven..enter n2 his Master's Throne...so he obeyed the call and went on home. He touched everyone he met and we each have our separate memories of him that we'll never 4get...PooPoo, U R n also Were a Trooper so keep on being strong..be strong 4 ur father n ur nephew even in the midst of this untimely and uneventful storm. May god's Peace continue 2 be with his family. Love, Twanda
