Joel lived a good life and was loved by all. He was the most selfless person I know. Six months and it still hurts knowing that I wont be able to pick up the phone and talk to my big brother. I miss playing the switch and our early morning chats. It hurts knowing that I wont be able to hear your chuckles or complaints. I'd give anything just to have my big brother back. Rest in peace Joel when my time comes I look forward to be reunited with you. You sister or what you would call it siamese twin Robin

I still find myself asking why you. You had so much to live for and to see in the world. When did things get so dark. Happy new years, it gets harder and harder with each passing year. I miss my big brother and would give anything to have you back I love you.

“ It’s been 2 months and I never got to say goodbye I’m not sure whether to grieve out loud or in silence. I wake up and go to sleep everyday without you and it’s the most hurtful feeling. Everyday I miss you more than the first day I lost you. I need you more than words can say and all I have is the memories of you and I to get me through. If I had one wish it would be more years with you. I will always love you.

“Wow, I'm in shock as I had no idea. When I opened Facebook today, my heart dropped. I was literally on your page a few days ago reminiscing on me, you and Robin hanging out when I visited Virginia. You were truly an awesome person and it was a blessing to have gotten to be in your presence. Sleep in peace Joe “Everyone who worked with him agreed that Joel was the smartest person employed at Chartway. You could throw any challenge at him, and he got it done with a level of calm competence that was admired by everyone on the team.

He was an incredibly kind, supportive, and reliable coworker and friend, and I'm glad to have known him.

“ Joel was always quick to smile and to help. He was smart, kind, and engaging. The first time I met Joel I was told by others that he'd be running the place one day because he was so young, smart, and capable. Of course, Joel would never say such a thing because he was also humble despite all his accomplishments and positive characteristics. Prayers and condolences to his family. Joel will be remembered and missed.

“ So sad to hear this news. Joel was a brilliant man, technically gifted, and unusually kind. He was an inspiration to anyone that knew him. Always willing to help. So many good memories... just at a loss and shocked he is gone. Blessings to his family. I'm sure Heavenly Father has welcomed Joel home.
