“ Words could never ease the pain of losing a loved one. So I'll leave words of comfort for you and your family. He's not in pain, nor will he ever have to go through another test. His body has been restored, and he is smiling again. No more cutting, no more tubes, no more nurses. And though it hurts right now, find peace in knowing he's much happier in his new home. I love you, and pray this road be made easier, knowing God has you covered in the locks of His arms.
